

13.

Written by News Administrator

Thursday, 27 June 2013 13:55 - Last Updated Thursday, 27 June 2013 13:57

---

The bodhisattva vow “All living beings, I vow to save them” at first blush seems impossible. Surely it is much more practical to vow to save oneself?

But we cannot save ourselves. The ego is the fulcrum of dualism. A fist cannot unclench itself.

We can however liberate all beings from us. And this liberation is “All living beings”.