

29.

Written by News Administrator

Thursday, 27 June 2013 14:28 - Last Updated Thursday, 27 June 2013 14:28

Stillness is not the ceasing of activity; stillness is suchness. When we see being direct, our normal categories fall away. Because linear time falls away, we call it timeless, and so, it is still. Because causality falls away it is vivid, not a waystation to or from anywhere else.