

We should distinguish between obstacles and delusion. Obstacles are straightforward: a persistent tune, an idea that keeps returning, a scenario that keeps regurgitating itself.

These seem a serious obstruction to our practice, but they're not. Delusion is our taking a position towards them. One aspect of delusion.